The Greek Public Employment Service (DYPA) invites young adults and their parents to the information events for the vocational education and training titled "Open Days – Get to know the DYPA Schools". With the end goal to highlight the numerous and significant professional opportunities and perspectives technical education has to offer, DYPA invests at the strengthening of the study programmes/ curricula as well as the upgrade of the laboratories of the Apprenticeship Vocational Schools (EPAS) and the Higher Vocational Training Schools (SAEK). In the context of the European Year of Skills DYPA also extends these get-to-know events between the public and the Vocational Training and Education Schools operating throughout Greece.

At the Athens Open Day visitors will experience something different because for the first time a specially designed area is created at the most central point of Greece's capital, where students and teaching staff will present in a festive atmosphere several of the fields of study/specialties of the Apprenticeship Vocational Schools (EPAS) and the Higher Vocational Training Schools (SAEK) in Attica.
